

working with knowledge based businesses to realise their potential

The nature of corporate aspiration

Many product- or technology-driven organisations are adding consultancy to their portfolio of activities. By doing so, they intend to develop customer-intimate business and obtain additional and sustainable competitive advantage. Some of these customer-intimate businesses have succeeded, and many have failed. Most often, these failures could have been avoided.

